

Rick Lozano Bio

Rick Lozano helps people and organizations crank up the positive results. As an in-demand keynote speaker, a gifted singer/songwriter, and one of the best facilitators you'll ever see, Rick has spoken to, coached, trained and mentored tens of thousands of people across the globe. Along the way, he has built a reputation for his energy, music, and refreshing delivery that leaves audiences raving and – more importantly – with action items that can be immediately implemented to produce positive change.

His background? Here's where it counts! It isn't enough to just entertain audiences – although he definitely does – Rick has the credibility and expertise to back it up! He draws on almost twenty years of experience in leadership and talent development, most recently in the tech industry working for an organization that was consistently recognized as one of the world's Best Places to Work. He is a standout voice at international conferences and a talented, creative, and fearless speaker. His professional journey has also included human resources, technology, financial services, and education, but his impact has been felt across many diverse industries.
